2019 Fall Fellows and Early Career Course in Venous Disease

On behalf of the American Venous Forum, we invite you to join us for the 2019 Fall Fellows and Early Career Course in Venous Disease to be held December 6-7, 2019 at the University of California Davis in Sacramento, CA.

This unique, non-CME program features small groups, live patient cases and hands-on workshops within an informal, collegial atmosphere - making these very popular programs.

Approximately 35-40 residents, fellows, and early career venous physicians from around the country will join a faculty of experts in the field of venous disease and representatives from sponsoring companies to learn and grow as venous professionals within this highly interactive environment.

Course Description

This program is presented for the benefit of residents, fellows and early career physicians within the specialty of vascular surgery, interventional radiology, interventional cardiology, vascular medicine, general surgery and associated programs.

The course program will cover:

- Anatomy and pathophysiology of venous disorders and noninvasive diagnostics
- Chronic venous insufficiency (superficial & deep)
- Pregnancy, upper extremity venous issues, acute DVT and wound care
- Future of venous disease
- The business of venous disease

Program Goals

- Provide attendees cutting edge knowledge in effective clinical management of venous disease
- Gain insight into future directions from critical analysis of investigative findings
- Utilize subsection meetings to provide a more focused format that fosters meaningful dialogue among physicians and researchers on specific types of venous disease and treatments

Meeting Attire

Dress for this course is casual, including dinners. Vision Partner are encouraged to participate in every aspect of this meeting, including presentations, discussions and meals.

Fall Fellows and Early Career Course Host

Nasim Hedayati, MD, FACS, RPVI is Professor of Surgery at University of California, Davis. She is the Medical Director of the UC Davis Vein Center. She is also the Chief of Vascular Surgery at Sacramento Veterans Affairs Medical Center. She is actively involved with resident education and training.
